

Declaration of consent to the collection and processing of data by the Carl-Zeiss-Stiftung for the assessment procedure

Personal data contained in the application is collected and processed for the purpose of processing the applications, the assessment procedure and contacting the applicant during the course of the project. This typically includes:

- Name, work address, academic title
- Work phone number
- Work email address
- Position and subject area at the higher education institution submitting the application
- Information on education and professional background
- Information on publications

This data will be stored and processed for all project participants whose information is provided in the application. The applicant is responsible for obtaining the relevant consent and assures the Carl-Zeiss-Stiftung that such consent has been obtained. If an individual or organisation revokes their consent, the applicant will inform the Carl-Zeiss-Stiftung without delay.

This data is saved on the Carl-Zeiss-Stiftungs server and may only be viewed by authorised persons. Third parties may be used to process data within the scope of the assessment procedure. In this case, GDPR-compliant commissioned data processing contracts must be in place with these third parties. We hereby confirm that the IT measures we use are carried out on the basis of the applicable laws and are necessary in order to implement the assessment procedure. Beyond this, the user's consent is required for any further data collection. Automatic erasure takes place six months after the end of the assessment procedure insofar as the data in question is no longer required.

User rights

The signee has the right to withdraw this consent at any time without providing any reasons for doing so. Furthermore, if necessary, the data that is collected may be rectified or erased or the collection of this data may be restricted. On request you may receive detailed information about the scope of the data collection we carry out from the address provided below. If the signee wishes to have their data transferred to a third party, a data transfer can also be requested.

Consequences of failure to sign

The signee has the right to refuse to consent to this Privacy Policy. However, since the implementation of the assessment procedure is reliant on the collection and processing of the above-mentioned data, failure to sign the Privacy Policy excludes the individual from participation in the call for proposals. With regard to the data of the other project participants, it is also possible that the other participants may not give consent to the data processing; in this case, their CVs and other information will not be taken into account in the assessment of the application.
